

I commute in the Houston metro area daily. The first thing I tune to when I get in my car is XM Traffic. There is no similar constantly updated local service in Houston. if the local channels wanted to they could create a similar service but they have not. It is unfair to both XM and the consumer that a service not available should be constrained and controlled by local commercial (for profit) organizations.

Tom Epley